

To summarize briefly the Soviet threat in the military field lies primarily in the possibility that they might get ahead of us in the field of delivery of nuclear weapons whether delivered by ballistic missile, aircraft, or from submarines. Our other military problems are peripheral to these. We are alerted to the danger and to their competence. We have great advantages; we have substantial geographical advantages and we have allies. Forewarned is forearmed.